But how to do it properly? Here are two possible options:Option A: Use the Android mockup templatesIf you want a start quickly, you can use the free mockup templates provided above. All you need to do is download and customize them according to your needs. Option B: Design from scratchDesigning a mockup from scratch can be fun, and it's not as hard as you think, all you need is to follow these tips:1. Set a goalEverything starts with the idea. You need to make a decision on what type of website or application you want to build based on the research and your business goals. And you also need to figure out what content and information you want to use in your product.2. Wireframing and interface designOnce you set a goal, you can start designing. You need to add content and information on your screen. Draw your information architecture and wireframes of individual screens/pages. 3. Prototyping and interactionWireframing has natural limitations—they are static and don't provide enough insights into how should the users interact with the interface. You need to use a prototyping tool to turn your wireframes into interactive, functional prototypes. What's more, you need to test your design to ensure it meets your needs. 4. Handoff to developers and developmentAt this stage, you can turn your visuals into something real. In conclusionThere you have it - the 30 best Android mockups in our opinion. We hope you'll find them useful!
