It still feels weird not having a ridiculously long wait between Star Wars movies anymore, but here we are, in 2018—a pretty bleak year in current events, but one of plenty when it comes to entertainment—with Solo: A Star Wars Story about to drop six months after Star Wars: The Last Jedi rocked us harder than a Wookie speed-metal band. So will Solo be just as good? The first full-length trailer makes the odds seem pretty good. Released over the weekend, the new trailer is our first look at what the movie is actually about: A hybrid space Western/heist film in which Han Solo (who may not actually have taken on that name yet) first meets Chewbacca, Lando, and a few other characters we'll no doubt love for one really big score. This content can also be viewed on the site it originates from. The new trailer does a really good job of selling the distinct Western vibe that Solo is aiming for (that gritty twang in the music that folds into the familiar Star Wars theme; that classic pistol duel standoff hip shot), while also just looking like a good time all around. It's kind of nice to see after the parade of worrisome news about the film's production, and a solid reminder that every Star Wars movie—even the Original Trilogy everyone likes so much—was kind of a mess up until the last minute. It's weird to think now that Star Wars is the biggest entertainment property on Planet Earth and the most obsessively analyzed fictional setting in existence, but like Han Solo, the reason why Star Wars is good is because, as far as anyone else knows, it's flying by the seat of its pants. Help Center For months, the focus on "Solo: A Star Wars Story" lay primarily on the drama off the screen after original directors, Phil Lord and Christopher Miller, were replaced with Ron Howard in mid-production. And reports that star Alden Ehrenreich required an emergency acting coach on set to better nail his channeling of the older Han Solo played by Harrison Ford in previous "Star Wars" films did little to dispel the disturbance fans were feeling in the Force. But then a funny thing happened on the way to the Kessel Run: A new trailer for the "Star Wars" prequel dropped Sunday night that quells much of the unease. That two minutes and 11 seconds of footage seems to reveal a lot of new information about the movie opening May 25:1. Geeks finally get confirmation that Chewbacca looks great for his age. In one sequence in the trailer, Ehrenreich's Han Solo tells his new friend, "You're a 190 years old? You look great! "That means the Wookiee is a centenarian twice over when he runs into Luke Skywalker in that bar on Tatooine in the original "Star Wars: A New Hope." Reportedly the sinister force behind the heist that drives the story, Dryden Vos is armed with both a menacing sneer and what appears to be brass knuckles with a lightsaber edge. The Millenium Falcon in SOLO: A STAR WARS STORY. Lucasfilm Ltd. / Lucasfilm Ltd. 4. Where in the universe is John Williams? Right from the opening of the trailer, the jangly electric guitar portends a much "rough around the edges" score courtesy of John Powell than the ones generations of fans grew up on with eight of the first nine live action "Star Wars." The legendary Williams is contributing something to the soundtrack, but "Solo" clearly is not going to sound exactly like Harrison Ford's "Star Wars" movies. Emilia Clarke is Qi'ra and Alden Ehrenreich is Han Solo in SOLO: A STAR WARS STORY. Lucasfilm Ltd. J. Lucasfilm Ltd of Throne's" Emilia Clarke). When pursued by Imperial fighters, he even utters the line, "I've got a good feeling about this," in an optimistic twist on a classic line from every other "Star Wars" movie.
