

Android prefix settings

I'm not robot!

Android root permission settings.

How do I configure Android Studio (or IntelliJ generally) to correctly generate getters and setters for member variables with prefixes? If I have a class public class Foo { int mBar; } I want it to create getBar() instead of getMBar when I do Refactor->Encapsulate or Generate EDIT I found the way to do it per-project basis: You just go File->Settings->Project Settings->Code Style But it created a settings file somewhere in my project directory. I want a solution which allows me to do it once for all projects, present and future. 4 Modern AUTOMATIC smartphones support a feature called Assisted Dialing. This allows the user to dial local telephone numbers using the normal local short dial string. For example a user can dial 0123456789 instead of +nn123456789 where 'nn' is the international dialing code. Because our mobile service uses roaming technology it is important to disable AUTOMATIC Assisted dialing on your Android phone and actually specify the country in which you are located. Otherwise you will need to use the international dialing format (+nxxxxxxx) for every outgoing call - even for local calls. If you do not select the a specific country for national dialing and you dial local calls without using the international dialing format then your outgoing local calls will fail. You will get a voice prompt saying something like "This call cannot be completed as dialed". It is not necessary to alter the Dial Assist settings on an iPhone, as this uses a different method to determine in what country the user is located. On an Android phone you can change the Default home country as follows: From a Home screen, tap Phone.From the Phone screen, tap the Menu icon (upper-right).Tap Settings.Tap Assisted dialingTap Default home countrySelect the Country in which you are located.If needed, configure the following options:Reference countryCountry codeIDD prefixNDD prefixCity/area codeNational number length Powering the phone off then back on is recommended after changes are made Looking for the easiest and fastest way to add an area code or a country code to all your contact numbers ? The Number Fixer app (Free) can help. This useful app goes through your contacts and appends a prefix to the phone numbers. Yes, it works for all contacts that are saved in the Phone, SIM card and Google Contacts, How to use ? Download Number Fixer from Google Play. Launch the Number Fixer app. Tap Add area/country code. On the Set number search option prompt, specify the length of the phone number you want to "fix", then hit OK. Next, you should see a list of phone numbers that have the same length you specified in the previous step. Here, you can enter the area code/country code you want to append, then hit Fix it. When the app asks you to confirm, tap Fix All. In my country, we have to use a prefix before dialing an international number, depending on which provider we use. For example, I use an international calling company for which I have to dial 019 before dialing the international number. Now, having to edit each and every international phone number in my address book to add a 109 would be annoying. And when I move providers, having to do the whole process again would be very annoying. Is there a way to tell Android, "every time you see a +, just dial 019 instead"? Or any other solution? (I use Cyanogenmod.) Google Contacts Pixel 5 Lifestyle (Image credit: Andrew Myrick / Android Central) Remember the days when you had to either memorize your contact's phone numbers, or you had them written down in some sort of, you know, phone book? Maybe you're too young for that, but I was absolutely thrilled when I could start storing contact information on my phone so that all I ever had to do was search for a name to call or message someone. However, the ease at which we can do this will change slightly due to some new FCC regulations, and it will affect millions of people and their corresponding contact information. We'll talk about what is going on, when it's happening, and how you can edit your contact's phone numbers to accommodate these new FCC area code regulations.In mid-July 2020, the U.S. Federal Communications Commission adopted the 968 prefix as a universal code that anyone in the United States could dial to automatically reach the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline. However, for this shortcut to work for everyone in the country, several area codes would be affected. To reach people in the affected area codes, callers would have to dial the full 10-digit number (area code, plus number), regardless of whether or not the calls were local or long distance.Which area codes are affected, and for how long?Source: Verizon (Image credit: Source: Verizon)As you can see from the table above, this change is a significant one and will affect 82 area codes across 35 states and the territory of Guam.When do these changes take effect?To reach folks in these area codes, you will have to begin dialing the full 10-digit number (area code plus number) beginning April 24, 2021. If you forget to dial the area code first, your call will still be completed until October 24, 2021. After this point, calls without the area code may not go through, and you may get a prompt asking you to hang up and try again with the 10-digit number.The 988 number to access the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline will officially take effect on July 16, 2022.Now that you know the what, when, and why, let's go over the how. The first thing you're going to want to do is search through your contacts to find your family, friends, and colleagues in the affected area codes. I didn't have any contacts that met those criteria, but the process below is the same regardless.Open the Contacts app on your phone.Search for a contact in the affected area codes, and tap on it.Tap on the blue Edit contact button at the bottom of the screen.Tap on their phone number.If it's not already there, manually add in the 1+ three-digit area code.Tap Save.Repeat as necessary.Source: Android CentralUnfortunately, there is no easy way to do this quickly, so you'll going to want to pour a glass of your favorite beverage, pull up your favorite binge-worthy show, and get to work.The steps are essentially the same whether you opt to do this on any of the best Android phones or in a web browser on your laptop or desktop computer. However, since you will probably have to check quite a few contact numbers and make several changes, we'd advise doing these updates on your computer so that you don't sprain your thumb with all of that typing.From a web browser, go to contacts.google.com.Search for a contact in the affected area codes, and click on it.Click on the edit (pencil) icon.Source: Android Central (Image credit: Source: Android Central)Click on their phone number, and if it's not already there, type in the 1+ three-digit area code.Source: Android Central (Image credit: Source: Android Central)Click Save.Repeat as necessary.Suppouse you make any mistakes while editing. Fear not! We have guides to get you sorted out in case you need to delete any duplicate contacts, or if you need to restore any accidentally deleted contacts.Here are a few points to keep in mind regarding these changes.Regardless of which Android phone you prefer, we recommend that you use Google's contacts and dialer apps. The default Samsung dialer won't automatically add the "1" in front of the area code, which could prove to be tedious moving forward.In addition to the 10-digit number, calls from landlines in certain affected area codes will require dialing "1" before the area code. The affected area codes are listed in the table above with an asterisk. Mobile calls have no such restriction.Other emergency service numbers like 911 or 311 will not be affected.Adding the area code prefix will not change what are now local calls to long distance. Note: Before you change DNS on Android, it is important to save your existing network settings. They will be required during the DNS setup process and if you decide to revert to your original configurations in the future. To unlock streaming services with our KeepSolid SmartDNS app, you have to register your IP address. Check out how to manage your IP address in the KeepSolid SmartDNS App and your KeepSolid User Office here. Also, we recommend you to block Google DNS servers (8.8.8.8 and 8.8.4.4) on your router, otherwise you may not be able to bypass geo-restrictions and access the desired content. How to set up KeepSolid SmartDNS on Android 9 1. Proceed to your Android device Settings. 2. Select Network & internet. 3. Tap Wi-Fi. 4. Press on your current WiFi network name. 5. On the Network details screen, tap Advanced. 6. Write down the following details of your current network, or just take a screenshot: IP address Gateway Subnet mask DNS 7. Once you've saved your current network details, you can change your Android DNS settings. For this, tap the edit icon in the top bar. 8. Tap Advanced options on the screen that pops up. 9. Navigate to IP settings and select the Static option. 10. Type in the following information: IP address: Enter the IP address of your current network (which you've saved before). Gateway: Provide your current network gateway (it was also included in the network details you've previously recorded). Network Prefix Length: Your network prefix length is related to the network's subnet mask. For example, for the subnet mask 255.255.255.0 the network prefix length is 24. If you don't know the value of your network prefix length, just type in your network's subnet mask you've saved before and it will be converted automatically. DNS 1: Type in the address of the selected KeepSolid SmartDNS server: 62.210.136.158 or 69.162.67.202. DNS 2: Leave the field blank or type in the address of the second SmartDNS server. 11. Tap Save. 12. Reboot your Android device. How to set up KeepSolid SmartDNS on Android 8 Before changing DNS settings on your Android 8, make sure to write down your network settings as advised before. Then, follow the steps below: 1. Go to your Android Settings and select Network & Internet. 2. Tap Wi-Fi. 3. Press and hold the required WiFi network until a box appears and tap Modify network. 4. Tap Advanced Options. 5. Navigate to IP settings and choose the Static option. 6. Provide the following information: IP address: Enter the IP address of your current network (which you've saved before). Gateway: Provide your current network gateway (it was also included in the network details you've previously recorded). Network Prefix Length: Your network prefix length is related to the network's subnet mask. For example, for the subnet mask 255.255.255.0 the network prefix length is 24. If you don't know the value of your network prefix length, just type in your network's subnet mask you've saved before and it will be converted automatically. DNS 1: Type in the address of the selected KeepSolid SmartDNS server: 62.210.136.158 or 69.162.67.202. DNS 2: Leave the field blank or type in the address of the second SmartDNS server. 7. In the DNS 1 field, enter the address of the selected KeepSolid SmartDNS server. As per the DNS 2, leave the field blank or type in the address of another SmartDNS server. 8. Press Save. 9. Reboot your device.
